

Ethnonationalism in the Contemporary World

Walker Connor and the Study of Nationalism

Edited by Daniele Conversi, University of Lincoln, UK

Commencing with his 1967 seminal essay 'Self-Determination: The New Phase', Walker Connor has exerted a profound influence upon scholarship dealing with nationalism. In Ethnonationalism in the Contemporary World, an assemblage of some of the most influential, world-renowned scholars employ various aspects of Connor's work to explicate the recent upsurge of nationalism on a global scale.

With contributions from leading academics with the inter-disciplinary field of nationalism and ethnicity, this book provides an essential tool for both students and scholars. It both expands on existing theoretical knowledge and provides an introductory synthesis. It should be required reading for any course on the subject, as well as in general courses of political science, sociology, international relations, political geography and area studies.
