

Registered Care: Narford Road

Narford Road is a terraced house on three floors, in a quiet residential street in Hackney, close to transport links and shops. It houses four people.

Registered Care: Narford Road

This project offers those people who have independent lives but need the protection of a registered care home to ensure that they are safe, and that they have guidance and support. Most people living here go out and about on their own, but there is a member of staff in the house all of the time, including at night when someone sleeps in.

Support is aimed at helping people to structure their time, to budget, to cook their own meals and keep their space clean, and to respond to difficulties that people have. Generally, Narford Road supports people who have a moderate learning difficulty but who are vulnerable and need to have access to staff during the day and night.

The project aims to help people to stand up for themselves, and to be as independent as possible. It tries to find ways of supporting people that are sensitive and don't get in the way of people leading as independent a life as possible.

The house is large but on three floors and service users have to be able to use several floors. Each person has their own bedroom and they share a utility room, two bathrooms, a living room and kitchen. There is a small garden that is well maintained and used by the service users.
